Yakuoji Hot Spring

Relax by bathing at a mountain village near to Hakata

Origin of Yakuoji Hot Spring

It was Motoaki Shimizu, an expert for antique books and Shintoism who found the mineral hot spring at Yakuoji in 1918.

Mr. Shimizu was religious and devoted to his faith. He read an old writing which went like this: the Great Monk Kukai got an order from Emperor Heijyo to test the medicinal natural spring water for perpetual youth and longevity in Chikushi (now Fukuoka). It worked very effectively on those suffering from serious disease”. Mr. Shimizu looked for the water and is said to have finally found it when he got an oracle from the Healing Buddha. This oracle led him to Yakuoji Hot Spring.

④ Legend of Yakuoji Spiritual Hot Spring

A long time ago, a samurai warrior arrived at Yakuoji. He carried a Buddhist statue of the Healing Buddha on his back and took his two children named “Onio” and “Keio”. Eventually, they settled there.

One day, the samurai fell seriously ill. The Healing Buddha who he worshipped greatly appeared beside his pillow and said, “I will release holy medicinal water into the mountain stream so that you can heal by bathing in it or drinking it.” Soon, he did as he was told and completely recovered from his illness.

Although he had a high status as a descendent from Emperor Seiwa, he became a monk and built a small temple to enshrine the Healing Buddha at the place which he named “Yakuoji”, meaning “Medicine King Temple”, after the village with medicinal holy water.

Festivals and Events

Local specialties attract big crowds

② Canola Festival

In early spring, the Mushirouchi Canola Road, near the Fukuoka Prefectural Horse Riding Stadium, becomes flooded on both sides with vast yellow flower fields spanning 6 hectares, with about 5 million Canola flowers.

The Canola festival is held by the local community on the day of the JR walking event. A lot of visitors come to see the flowers from both inside and outside of Fukuoka.

① “Local Food Festival”

Every May, a local food festival is held around the Fukuoka Food Processing Industrial Park in Shishibu, Koga.

A variety of food companies in the park sell their products at lower prices, as well as special collaboration products made with the local companies of Koga.

More than 30000 people gather at the festival every year.

③ koga Festival

Every November, Koga City holds a festival where you can enjoy a variety of stalls ranging from local foods to handicrafts made in Koga at reasonable prices.

On the stage, the program includes a rice cake throwing event, attracting around 40000 shoppers every year.

④ Hibiscus Hamabo Festival

From the middle of July through to early August, there blooms approximately 6000 yellow Hibiscus Hamabo around the mouth of the Daikon River. They are listed as an endangered species by Fukuoka Prefecture. Hibiscus Hamabo grows in the area between the sea and river, similar to mangroves, so they are sometimes called semi mangrove plants.

The Hamabo Festival is held every summer at Kazurugahama Park.

⑤ Saturday Night Market

The Night market is open in late July at the main street in front of Koga station. The street turns into a pedestrian zone after 17:00 once every summer. A variety of stalls stand catering snacks, food and old style children's games.

Why don't you enjoy the cool evening breeze at the Market with your kids?

⑥ Nagoshi Festival

A shrine ritual is performed at Gosho Hachimangu Shrine from 18:30 on July 31st every year. Worshippers go through a big straw ring with more than 2 meters in diameter for good health. It has more than 400 years of history, inviting visitors with around 300 candles in bamboo tubes on both sides leading up to the shrine in the evening. It creates a fantastic serene atmosphere.

Worshippers bring straw of the ring home so that they can tie the both ends at the entrance to expel evil spirits.

Koga Shrine and Oyamada Saigu perform the same ritual too.

⑦ Hojyoya Festival

This festival is celebrated to appreciate the good harvest of the sea, mountains and rice fields as well as to pray for the success of businesses and traffic safety. It is held at every shrine in Koga on different days. Mushirouchi Hojyoya at Suga Shrine on September 18th. Koga Hojyoya at Koga Shrine on the 28th and 29th of September. Aoyagi Hojyoya at Gosho Hachimangu Shrine on the 4th and 5th of October.

The biggest one in Koga City is Koga Hojyoya where traditional stalls stand in the parking area of Koga City Hall, across from Koga Shrine, attracting many visitors over two evenings.

⑧ Taniyama Bon Tug-of-War

The traditional game of tug-of-war is held from around 20:00 on August 15th in the Taniyama area. A big rope spanning 50 meters in length and 10 centimeters in thickness is laid out on the street. Young men pull on the sea side while children pull on the mountain side of the rope. They do not only pull, but also swing it from left to right with some tricks called “Gaburi”, using a loud voice to threaten their opponent. The unique event started a long time ago as it is believed that ancestors’ spirits return to heaven on the rope.

They also believe that tug-of-war brings good health for the year.

9 Yakuoji Okunchi Festival

The autumn festival is held at Shirahige Shrine to offer gratitude for the good harvest and health to the Shinto gods. It starts with a Shinto ritual on October 8th, followed by the Goshinko ritual on the 16th and Niinamesai ritual on the 17th. Recently, Goshinko is performed on the closest Sunday to the 16th and Niinamesai on the next day.

On Goshinko day, they light the shrine and about 70 houses of the parishioners with lanterns that have names or signs written on them.

Rich History

Ancient horse harnesses made of gold and bronze were excavated in Koga and has gathered attention nationwide.

①Aoyagi Stage Inn of Karatsu Highway

Aoyagi Stage Inn was built around 1605 in the Edo period and took about 50 years to complete. It was a travelling post on the Karatsu Highway between Kokura in Kitakyushu and Karatsu in Saga that stretches about 110 km long.

Since it was built, there were three big fires that caused for most of the original structure to be lost. There are remains of the west gate and a street light which was restored.

Why don't you take a walk with a Koga City volunteer guide?

②Funabaru Ancient Burial Mound

Funabaru Kofun, a key shaped ancient burial mound, was built around the end of 6th century to the early 7th century. In the adjacent excavation site, more than 500 items including harnesses, armors, weapons and agriculture tools were discovered.

The discovery has gathered attention nationwide as it could lead to understanding funeral ceremonies, the political situation and the society of the ancient times. It was designated as a national historic site.

It is open to the public with the parking area and an explanation sign board since April, 2018.

The research reports are always exhibited at the City History Museum.

⑦Legend of Kobotaishi(The Great Monk Kukai)

While Kobotaishi was attaining Buddhism, he met an old woman washing daikon radishes at a river. He asked her to give him a daikon but she harshly refused him. Taishi grieved at her response and then beat the ground with his gold pole. Then, the water disappeared from the river. This occurrence is believed to be the reason why the river is named “Daikon River”.

⑧Legend of Dengyotaishi (the great monk Saicho)

When Dengyotaishi was returning from China to Japan, a storm hit his ship making him drift off to the beach of Koga. The next morning he woke up and found that many cranes were dancing at the beach. “How comfortable I feel! Cranes are like flowers!” he said. That is believed to be the reason why a river near the beach was called “Kazurugawa”, meaning flower crane river.
